UNION CHARGES MURDER AFTER PICKETS DIE

Probe Of Shooting During Union Attempt To Halt
Train Underway
TWO KILLED, 3 INJURED

Murder Warrants Against Guards And President Of Railroad Sought

GRIDLEY, Ill., Feb. 7.—Assertions of "self defense" and "cold blooded murder" were made today in the aftermath of strike violence on the Toledo, Peoria & Western railroad, in which two pickets were killed and three others injured.

Witnesses said that the skirmishing took place yesterday after special agents guarding a TP&W freight train fired into a group of strikers who had attempted to halt movement of the train.

The victims were members of the Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen's union, which had been on strike against the railroad since Oct. 1, when the line was returned to its owners after federal operation.

Locked in the McLean county jail at nearby Bloomington, Ill., were four guards, reported to have participated in the shooting. They were held on open charges pending additional questioning.

In Peoria, Ill., W. C. Keiser, international vice-president of the union, charged that the pickets had been "shot down in cold blood by employed gunmen of the railroad." Keiser said he would seek murder warrants against the four guards and against TP&W president George P. McNear, Jr.

Railroad Seeks Protection

McNear, also in Peoria, sent a telegram to Gov. Dwight Green, demanding that the Illinois state militia be called out to protect the railroad's operations. McNear said that the guards had fired in "self defense" when pickets threw rocks and attempted to prevent movement of the train.

The deaths were the first fatalities directly attributable to strike violence recorded in postwar labor disputes.

The shooting occurred after approximately 20 pickets, racing here in automobiles from East Peoria, overtook the train as it stopped to switch onto a siding.

Eight other guards riding in the rear caboose of the train were returned to East Peoria when the freight was ordered back under the protection of state police.

Say Pickets Not Armed

Union spokesman claimed that the pickets had not been armed, except with rocks. The statements were upheld by McLean county Sheriff Earl Richards, who said his men had searched the strikers, including the slain men.

C. A. McGuire, Peoria, a striker, said the pickets had followed the train almost 40 miles, driving along a highway paralleling the tracks, after the train pulled out of the East Peoria yards.

McGuire said there was a brief flurry of gunfire, in which no one was hurt, at Eureka, Ill., and the strikers then followed the train to Gridley.

"Four guards left the train at a highway intersection to throw the switch," he said. "There was a lot of name-calling by both sides. We told them what we thought of them, but none of our fellows did anything to them."

"Suddenly a man in a Marine uniform fired at us. Then the three other guards also fired. None of us had any guns."

The train was comprised of a

Navy To Stress Air Strength

Big, Fast Carriers To Be
'Cutting Edge' Of U. S.
Peacetime Fleet

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—The "cutting edge" of the Navy's peacetime fleets will be big, fast carriers, with battleships relegated to auxiliary roles, Secretary of Navy James Forrestal said today. In an annual report to President Truman, Forrestal said airpower will be the backbone of the "immediate postwar navy."

Nowhere in his report did Forrestal mention the atomic bomb or its possible effect on fleet composition and ship design.

"The carrier is today the spearhead of the modern fleet just as the battleship was 25 years ago," Forrestal told the President.

"But just as the battleship had to have fleet complements and auxiliaries... so the carrier—the modern cutting edge of the Navy—must have its auxiliaries: the fast battleships, the modern cruisers, the long-range destroyers, the submarines and all the vast complex of auxiliary vessels that constitute a truly effective navy."

Forrestal disclosed that U. S. Pacific and Atlantic active fleets will be built around a total of 13 large carriers, and 13 escort carriers, and 13 destroyers.

In addition, Forrestal said, the Navy will retain 15 more carriers, 62 escort carriers and seven battleships.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—President Truman said today he saw little likelihood that this country would have to return to meat rationing in the food conservation program to avoid starvation abroad.

But Mr. Truman told his news conference, the country should take such a step if it becomes necessary to keep between 10,000,000 and 15,000,000 people in other lands from starving.

BY MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—A generally sympathetic American public prepared today to eat and drink less luxuriously for a while so that people overseas may at least have food enough to stay alive.

President Truman decreed simpler diets yesterday when he outlined a nine-point food conservation program to help prevent mass starvation in both the conquered and liberated countries of Europe and Asia in what may well be the worst food crisis in modern times.

He warned that it might mean "inconveniences" to Americans. But he said he knew America's conscience would not permit it to let other peoples "suffer and die."

The program does not mean a return to food rationing, although for at least five months it will mean a comparatively course type of "grey" bread, less meat and oils and considerably less beer and whiskey.

However, the President said he was requesting food retailers to ration informally commodities "that will be in scarce supply for the months immediately ahead."

There also was a possibility that deep inroads into the record 1945 wheat crop, much of it expended in wasteful livestock feeding, might make it necessary to continue the program longer.

HOMMA'S WIFE CLAIMS HE IS 'PEACE LOVING'

MANILA, Feb. 7.—Lt. Gen. Masaharu Homma sobbed openly in court today when his wife, Fujiko, described him as a "peace-loving family man."

Testifying in a courtroom tensed by word that Gen. MacArthur had affirmed the death sentence for Lt. Gen. Tokuyomi Yamashita, Homma's successor as commander in the Philippines, Mrs. Homma said:

"I have come here from Tokyo, proud of the fact that I am the wife of Masaharu Homma. I have one daughter. It is my wish that one day she too shall marry a man like Masaharu."

Homma wept through most of her testimony, wiping away tears and bowing his head as his wife described him as a kind, generous and peaceful citizen.

Mrs. Homma did not break but she choked and swallowed hard several times as she recalled how her husband objected to policies of the Japanese military clique.

L. D. Hite, Marion, was treated in Berger hospital for a deep laceration on the right side of his head, Wednesday evening, following an accident on the Cook road, four miles north of Circleville.

Bricker Unopposed For Senator; Gov. Lausche, Herbert To Be Selected

COLUMBUS, Feb. 7.—Ohioans voting on the statewide ticket in the May 7 primary election will have a list of Democratic candidates twice as long as the Republican list to consider.

Former Gov. John W. Bricker will be unopposed for the Republican nomination for U. S. senator, as will four other candidates—three Republicans and one Democrat.

Both Gov. Frank J. Lausche on the Democrat ticket and Thomas J. Herbert, candidate for the GOP gubernatorial nomination, will meet nominal opposition.

A politically unknown Youngstown grocer, Joseph Torok, Jr., filed as a candidate for the governor's nomination on the Democratic ticket a few hours before the 6:30 p. m. deadline yesterday.

Albert E. Payne, Springfield, manufacturer, entered the GOP race for the nomination of governor against Herbert. Payne will be making his second try for the nomination. He finished far behind in a field of four in the same race in 1944.

A total of 61 candidates—41 Democrats and 20 Republicans—filed for the nomination in the ten state-wide fields.

Four candidates in addition to Bricker will not meet opposition for their party nominations. They are:

Don H. Ebright, R., Akron, incumbent state treasurer; Charles S. Bell, R., Cincinnati, incumbent supreme court judge, and Charles B. Zimmerman, D., Springfield, incumbent supreme court judge, all seeking re-election, and Clinton DeWitt Boyd, R., Middletown.

BRITISH SEARCH FOR RAIDERS OF AFRICAN CAMP

JERUSALEM, Feb. 7.—British airborne troops cut off the village of Holon, south of Jaffa, today and searched it for Jewish extremists who raided a British army camp and precipitated a revenge uprising by British negro soldiers.

Five persons were killed in fighting late yesterday.

Search parties used bloodhounds and magnetic detectors to hunt two truckloads of arms and ammunition seized by members of the extremist Irgun Zvai Leumi band who attacked the camp where the African troops were stationed.

The enraged negro soldiers retaliated by raiding the nearby Jewish town of Holon. A British officer and one negro soldier were killed in the camp fighting. Three Jews died during the town raid.

Russian Decision To Drop
Greek Charges Ends
Threat To Group

LONDON, Feb. 7.—A second Soviet-British dispute—Ukrainian charges that British troops in Indonesia threaten the peace—faced the UNO security council today after a hard-fought compromise settlement of the Russian-British quarrel over Greece.

Observers believed the Ukrainian charges might be withdrawn as a result of the Greek settlement. The U. S. S. R. and Soviet Ukraine charges had been filed simultaneously.

Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin was generally considered to have won a major victory for Britain in the Greek case, which ended when Russia withdrew her charges at the council meeting last night.

A simple statement by the council chairman, N. J. O. Makin of Australia, that the council had heard the discussion and considered the case closed brought an end to the acrimonious debate which threatened the infant organization's unity.

The compromise settlement resulted from a statement by Andrei Vishinsky, Soviet vice foreign commissar, that Russia agreed not to press her charges against Britain and did not insist that the council should pass a declaration that British troops should leave Greece.

Bevin studied Vishinsky's offer for 30 intense minutes, then accepted it.

Makin moved that the council proceed to the next item of business. His proposal was accepted by acclamation by the council and drew cheers from the galleries. Bevin and Vishinsky shook hands. Then both shook hands with Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., chief American delegate who prepared the compromise formula.

Bevin said he was glad the "unhappy incident between the U. S. S. R. and Britain" was closed.

"Perhaps ventilation of our difficulties at the first meeting of the security council has removed the misunderstanding, and if so we built better than we knew," Bevin said.

The exact words used by Makin to close the issue were, "I feel that we should take note of the declarations made before the security council by the U. S. S. R., the United Kingdom, Greece, and the view of the United States, France, Poland, Egypt, Brazil and The Netherlands concerning the presence of British troops in Greece and consider the matter closed."

In addition to approving this statement, Vishinsky made a short statement of his own in which he said that the Soviet Union did not

KRAMER DOUBTS WINDS MESSAGE WAS RECEIVED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Capt. A. D. Kramer said today he does not believe the Navy department intercepted a message which revealed Japan's decision for war with the United States prior to Dec. 7, 1941.

Kramer told congress' Pearl Harbor investigating committee he once regarded an intercept which he saw Dec. 5, 1941 as a genuine "winds code" message meaning that Japan was going to war.

But, he said, he is convinced now that the paper he saw on that occasion was just one of many "false alarms."

The winds code was set up by Japan as means of notifying her diplomats abroad when relations were to be broken with the U. S., Britain or Russia.

'Brownout' Returns As Fuel
Shortage Grows After Union Defies U. S.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—Mayor William O'Dwyer ordered all schools in New York City closed indefinitely at the end of classes today to combat a fuel crisis resulting from a four-day strike of 3,500 AFL tugboat operators.

The closing order followed a state of emergency proclamation issued after the strikers voted 2-to-1 against returning to work despite government seizure of the harbor craft.

The emergency proclamation drastically restricted the use for existing supplies of fuel and decreed a city-wide brownout.

An all-night meeting of union and company representatives broke up early today without any decision to return to work. The office of defense transportation called for volunteers to man the 400 idle tugs. The ODT also asked the Army and Navy to divert their fleet of 45 tugs to transport emergency fuel supplies for the relief of shivering New Yorkers.

Although no decision was reached at last night's meeting, Edward C. McGuire, Mayor O'Dwyer's labor adviser said a proposition had been arrived at that would be submitted to the union membership Friday. He did not disclose the nature of the proposal.

O'Dwyer's emergency decree barred delivery of fuel to all places of amusement and "places not directly concerned with public health, safety, or public utilities, homes, hospitals and institutions."

The order also banned the light

LONDON, Feb. 7.—France registered opposition today to the location of UNO headquarters in the New York area, giving impetus to a groundswell of sentiment against the proposed Stamford-Greenwich site.

2 KNOWN DEAD AND 29 MISSING FROM THE YUKON

SEWARD, Alaska, Feb. 7.—Twenty-nine persons still were unaccounted for today after the last known survivors were landed here from the ill-fated liner Yukon.

Two persons, still unidentified, were known to be dead. The blanket-wrapped bodies, believed to be those of a soldier and a passenger, were put ashore last night with the last group of survivors.

The Coast Guard reported that 464 passengers and crew members had been brought here by rescue craft which ploughed through mountainous seas to the reef where the Yukon went aground during a blizzard Sunday.

Alaska steamship company officials checked the roster of 495 passengers and crew in the hope that an entry error had been made. The passenger list included 130 returning soldiers.

Government Official Says

TRUMAN FORMULA COMING

Wage-Price Plan Said To Be Only Holdup To Quick
End Of Dispute

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—President Truman said today he hopes to be able to announce within a day or two a wage-price formula which will lead to a settlement of the steel strike.

Mr. Truman told his news conference that he hoped to be able to make his announcement shortly. He said that it was not a materially new economic stabilization formula, but a plan for meeting the immediate situation.

In general terms, he explained that if this country achieves the mass production of which it is capable, the situation will adjust itself.

And then, the President said, there would be no need for a government wage-price formula.

Stumbling blocks have prevented the achievement of this production and the President said if these difficulties had not arisen the government's original stabilization formula would have worked out.

Shortly after Mr. Truman's conference with reporters he scheduled a meeting for this afternoon with Philip Murray, head of the CIO Steelworkers union and one of the principals in the steel dispute. Murray was to see the president at 3:30 p. m.

Asked whether he would begin his Florida vacation on Monday if the steel strike had not been settled by then, the President said yes; he was still going to Florida; he could do business by telephone.

By United Press

Hopes for labor peace rose today as a government official reported that the steel dispute "is virtually settled or will be by Saturday."

More than half the 1,460,000 American workers idled by strikes and shutdowns are steel workers.

It was disclosed yesterday that representatives of U. S. Steel Corp. and the CIO steel workers union have been meeting secretly and consulting with government officials in an effort to settle the 18-day-old steel strike by the weekend.

Sources close to the industry and government said that delay in completing President Truman's wage-price formula was the only obstacle to a quick agreement between company and union.

Other labor developments:

1. The house of representatives was expected to take final action on a sweeping strike control bill.

2. New York harbor tugboat operators were to vote today on a proposal to settle their four-day strike, which precipitated a fuel shortage and caused a return of the "brown-out" to New York City.

3. At Gridley, Ill., railroad guards shot and killed two pickets

MRS. JACKSON INJURED WHEN WALL COLLAPSES

Union street, was injured, Wednesday when struck by debris from a falling garage wall in the alley behind the W. T. Grant Company.

The garage wall, constructed of concrete blocks, collapsed when the heavy winds caused a tall brick wall, part of the old Circle, which stood back of the garage to fall against the garage wall.

The entire rear end of the garage, where Mrs. Jackson's husband works as a mechanic, had to be taken out Wednesday. Workmen also removed the pile of old bricks which had been the old brick wall.

Mrs. Jackson was given emergency treatment for lacerations, bruises and brush burns of both legs in Berger hospital and returned to her home. Her injuries were described as "not serious."

RUSSIANS PLAN TO KEEP PEACE

Large Red Army To Protect Interests, Stamp Out Threats Planned

LONDON, Feb. 7.—An array of top-ranking Soviet spokesmen disclosed in clear terms today that Russia sees many threats to her security and, while denouncing talk of a third world war, will keep an extremely strong army to guard her interests.

The Russian spokesman described a vigorous Soviet foreign policy whose purpose is to reach out and destroy what the Russians consider threats to peace whenever they become visible.

Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav M. Molotov said last night in a radio address preliminary to the supreme Soviet elections that Russia must keep the "pack of aggressor hounds" chained if she is to accomplish the domestic tasks her leaders have set.

Molotov charged that adventurers and imperialists from the ruling classes of other countries were encouraging talk of a third world war. He said no such warmongers existed in the Soviet Union.

The Soviet people, he said, is very watchful of the international situation to discover possible hotbeds of peace disturbers.

Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin was generally considered to have won a major victory for Britain in the Greek case, which ended when Russia withdrew her charges at the council meeting last night.

A simple statement by the council chairman, N. J. O. Makin of Australia, that the council had heard the discussion and considered the case closed brought an end to the acrimonious debate which threatened the infant organization's unity.

The compromise settlement resulted from a statement by Andrei Vishinsky, Soviet vice foreign commissar, that Russia agreed not to press her charges against Britain and did not insist that the council should pass a declaration that British troops should leave Greece.

Bevin studied Vishinsky's offer for 30 intense minutes, then accepted it.

Makin moved that the council proceed to the next item of business. His proposal was accepted by acclamation by the council and drew cheers from the galleries. Bevin and Vishinsky shook hands. Then both shook hands with Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., chief American delegate who prepared the compromise formula.

Bevin said he was glad the "unhappy incident between the U. S. S. R. and Britain" was closed.

"Perhaps ventilation of our difficulties at the first meeting of the security council has removed the misunderstanding, and if so we built better than we knew," Bevin said.

The exact words used by Makin to close the issue were, "I feel that we should take note of the declarations before the security council by the U. S. S. R., the United Kingdom, Greece, and the view of the United States, France, Poland, Egypt, Brazil and The Netherlands concerning the presence of British troops in Greece and consider the matter closed."

In addition to approving this statement, Vishinsky made a short statement of his own in which he said that the Soviet Union did not

KRAMER DOUBTS WINDS MESSAGE WAS RECEIVED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Capt. A. D. Kramer said today he does not believe the Navy department intercepted a message which revealed Japan's decision for war with the United States prior to Dec. 7, 1941.

Kramer told congress Pearl Harbor investigating committee he once regarded an intercept which he saw Dec. 5, 1941 as a genuine "winds code" message meaning that Japan was going to war.

But, he said, he is convinced now that the paper he saw on that occasion was just one of many "false alarms."

The winds code was set up by Japan as a means of notifying her diplomats abroad when relations were to be broken with the U. S., Britain or Russia.

Other Democrats filing for the committee posts were: Edward Dowden, Wayne township; Walter

New York Schools To Close Today

'Brownout' Returns As Fuel Shortage Grows After Union Defies U. S.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—Mayor William O'Dwyer ordered all schools in New York City closed today to combat a fuel crisis resulting from a four-day strike of 3,500 AFL tugboat operators.

The closing order followed a state of emergency proclamation issued after the strikers voted 2-to-1 against returning to work despite government seizure of the harbor craft.

The emergency proclamation drastically restricted the use for existing supplies of fuel and decreed a city-wide brownout.

An all-night meeting of union and company representatives broke up early today without any decision to return to work. The office of defense transportation called for volunteers to man the 400 idle tugs. The ODT also asked the Army and Navy to divert their fleet of 45 tugs to transport emergency fuel supplies for the relief of shivering New Yorkers.

Although no decision was reached at last night's meeting, Edward C. McGuire, Mayor O'Dwyer's labor adviser said a proposition had been arrived at that would be submitted to the union membership Friday. He did not disclose the nature of the proposal.

O'Dwyer's emergency decree barred delivery of fuel to all places of amusement and "places not directly concerned with public health," and rationed existing supplies to public utilities, homes, hospitals and institutions.

The order also banned the light

France Opposes Location In Stamford-Greenwich Area; Decision Delay Seen

LONDON, Feb. 7.—France registered opposition today to the location of UNO headquarters in the New York area, giving impetus to a groundswell of sentiment against the proposed Stamford-Greenwich site.

M. V. Broustra of France told the permanent headquarters committee that the New York area contained too many foreign colonies, and the UNO would "suffer from exasperated nationalism."

"For example," Broustra said, "there is a big Jewish colony. Can you imagine holding UNO debate on Palestine in that atmosphere?"

"Moreover, New York is so big that it would cause great physical difficulties even in the simple

2 KNOWN DEAD AND 29 MISSING FROM THE YUKON

SEWARD, Alaska, Feb. 7.—Twenty-nine persons still were unaccounted for today after the last known survivors were landed here from the ill-fated liner Yukon.

Two persons, still unidentified, were known to be dead. The blanket-wrapped bodies, believed to be those of a soldier and a passenger, were put ashore last night with the last group of survivors.

The Coast Guard reported that 464 passengers and crew members had been brought here by rescue craft which ploughed through mountainous seas to the reef where the Yukon went aground during a blizzard Sunday.

Alaska steamship company officials checked the roster of 495 passengers and crew in the hope that an entry error had been made. The passenger list included 180 returning soldiers.

Government Official Says Dispute 'Is Virtually Settled' Now

TRUMAN FORMULA COMING

Wage-Price Plan Said To Be Only Holdup To Quick End Of Dispute

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—President Truman said today he hopes to be able to announce within a day or two a wage-price formula which will lead to a settlement of the steel strike.

Mr. Truman told his news conference that he hoped to be able to make his announcement shortly. He said that it was not a materially new economic stabilization formula, but a plan for meeting the immediate situation.

In general terms, he explained that if this country achieves the mass production of which it is capable, the situation will adjust itself.

And then, the President said, there would be no need for a government wage-price formula.

Stumbling blocks have prevented the achievement of this production and the President said if these difficulties had not arisen the government's original stabilization formula would have worked out.

Shortly after Mr. Truman's conference with reporters he scheduled a meeting for this afternoon with Philip Murray, head of the CIO Steelworkers union and one of the principals in the steel dispute. Murray was to see the president at 3:30 p.m.

Asked whether he would begin his Florida vacation on Monday if the steel strike had not been settled by then, the President said yes; he was still going to Florida; he could do business by telephone.

By United Press

Hopes for labor peace rose today as a government official reported that the steel dispute "is virtually settled or will be by Saturday."

More than half the 1,460,000 American workers idled by strikes and shutdowns are steel workers. It was disclosed yesterday that representatives of U. S. Steel Corp. and the CIO steel workers union have been meeting secretly and consulting with government officials in an effort to settle the 18-day-old steel strike by the weekend.

Sources close to the industry and government said that delay in completing President Truman's wage-price formula was the only obstacle to a quick agreement between company and union.

Other labor developments:

1. The house of representatives was expected to take final action on a sweeping strike control bill.

2. New York harbor tugboat operators were to vote today on a proposal to settle their four-day strike, which precipitated a fuel shortage and caused a return of the "brown-out" to New York city.

3. At Gridley, Ill., railroad guards shot and killed two pickets

MRS. JACKSON INJURED WHEN WALL COLLAPSES

Mrs. Lewis Jackson, 424 East Union street, was injured Wednesday when struck by debris from a falling garage wall in the alley behind the W. T. Grant Company.

The garage wall, constructed of concrete blocks, collapsed when the heavy winds caused a tall brick wall, part of the old Circle, which stood back of the garage to fall against the garage wall.

The entire rear end of the garage, where Mrs. Jackson's husband works as a mechanic, had to be taken out Wednesday. Workmen also removed the pile of old bricks which had been the old brick wall.

Mrs. Jackson was given emergency treatment for lacerations, bruises and brush burns of both legs in Berger hospital and returned to her home. Her injuries were described as "not serious."

and generally favorable. Some legislators questioned whether there was a wheat shortage. But many agreed with Rep. Helen Gahagan Douglas, D., Calif., that the program was "exactly proper and right."

Mr. Truman's plan dealt principally with the conservation of wheat. It most certainly will eventually affect many other kinds of food, however, specifically it provided for:

1. A vigorous government food conservation campaign with the emphasis on bread.
2. Discontinuance of the use of wheat in the direct production of alcohol and beer.
3. An increase in the flour extraction rate, which determines the quantity of flour which can be made from a given amount of wheat, from 72 to 80 per cent.
4. Export during this calendar year of 375,000 tons of fats and oils and 1,600,000,000 pounds of meat as well as increased exports of cheese and milk products.
5. Agriculture department control of wheat and flour inventories of millers, bakers and distributors.
6. Priorities for rail shipments of wheat, corn, meat and other essential foods.

Under the program, the agriculture department within the next day or two will issue orders to divert grains now being consumed by livestock to food purposes.

For a time this will mean greater marketing of livestock and poultry. In the long run, however, it will result in less milk, meat and eggs. Top-quality steaks and roasts will become increasingly scarce.

Whiskey production will be cut 25 per cent and beer 30 per cent under the new limitations.

Federal agencies also will launch an intensive campaign to urge the nation's housewives to use every crust of bread possible and see that edible foods do not wind up in the garbage pail.

These inconveniences, the President said, "will be a small price to pay for saving lives, mitigating suffering in liberated countries and helping to establish a firmer foundation for peace."

The administration has been studying the world food situation since shortly after VE-day.

In his statement, Mr. Truman said that "more people face starvation and even actual death for want of food today than in any year and perhaps more than in all the war years combined."

He compared this country's average consumption of 3,000 calories a day with Europe where it runs between 1,000 and 2,000. "Under the circumstances," he said, "it is apparent that only through super-human efforts can mass starvation be prevented."

TRUMAN BACKS NOMINATION OF PAULEY TO JOB

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7—President Truman today gave his full support to Edwin W. Pauley, whose nomination to be undersecretary of navy has caused a heated senate controversy.

Asked directly whether he planned to withdraw Pauley's nomination, the President said no; that he was backing Pauley because he believed he was an honest man and an excellent administrator.

Rumors that the Pauley nomination might be withdrawn had been heard as Republican senators—who have been fighting the Pauley appointment—turned their fire on another Truman nomination, that of George E. Allen as a director of the Reconstruction Finance Corp.

Opposition to Pauley, a California oil man and former Democratic national treasurer, has been fed by testimony at senate naval affairs committee hearings on his qualifications.

Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes testified that Pauley, in his party role, tried to persuade him to drop a federal suit for title to oil-bearing tidelands.

Pauley repeatedly denied the charge. He said Ickes was confused and had misunderstood their conversation.

Mr. Truman expressed a similar view; he said Ickes could well have been mistaken.

REDS QUESTION PLAN TO MAKE ALL NEWS OPEN

LONDON, Feb. 7—Andre Gromyko of Russia indicated opposition today to a suggested freedom of information resolution which would set up the principle that all sources of news—particularly official sources—be open to all without discrimination.

The United Nations steering committee was considering a Philippine freedom of information resolution calling for a United Nations international press conference.

"Does the delegate from the Philippines mean that the war office—is an official source of news—shall be open to all?" Gromyko asked.

The debate was cut short at that point. P. J. Noel-Baker of Britain pointed out that the substance of the resolution was not up for consideration—that the only issue was whether the resolution should be placed on the assembly agenda.

who were attempting to prevent the movement of a freight train over the strikebound Toledo, Peoria & Western railroad lines.

4. Eighteen thousand members of District 33, United Steel Workers of America (CIO) decided to join the nationwide steel strike at 12:01 a.m. Friday, 24 hours after the expiration of the cooling off period required by Minnesota state law.

5. Federal labor mediator James F. Dewey said a steel strike settlement probably would lead to an agreement between General Motors Corp. and 175,000 striking CIO United Auto Workers.

The house of representatives yesterday gave tentative approval to legislation which would make unions and companies liable in the courts for violation of contracts, fix a 30-day cooling-off period before strikes may be called, set up a six-man mediation board and ban picketing violence, union boycotts and foremen's unions.

The bill was supported by a strong coalition of Republicans and southern Democrats who beat down all efforts to soften it.

LAUSCHE TELLS FARMERS EUROPE MUST BE HELPED

COLUMBUS, Feb. 7—Gov. Frank J. Lausche told a farm and home week audience at Ohio State University last night that America must be merciful in the face of the threat of hunger over the world.

"There will be hunger in Europe in spite of all we can do," Lausche said. "It is the genius of America to be merciful. The call is clear. There can be no equivocation."

Lausche took a stand against sharing atomic bomb information with other nations.

"Have all our allies indicted we can repose full confidence in them?" he asked. "In my opinion there must be a greater demonstration of this before we can be justified in revealing our secrets."

The governor's address followed a talk by F. J. Maurer, Fostoria, manager of the Ohio Farmers Grain Corp., who said there is a definite shortage in the wheat crop now.

mechanism of distributing documents among the delegates."

Brountr proposed the selection now only of interim headquarters, leaving the permanent site for further study.

Russia and China set back an Australian campaign for a west coast site by strongly supporting the inspection committee's recommendation of the Stamford-Greenwich area.

China originally gave strong support to the campaign for San Francisco. The Chinese spokesman admitted the Stamford-Greenwich site probably would be "a little more expensive" than some others. But he reminded the delegates that any site would cost money.

He added that the UNO should not be overly concerned with unfavorable reaction from residents of the area, because "it would happen anywhere except in the wilderness."

A movement was under foot under Australian leadership to select San Francisco as the interim site for the next assembly meeting in September. A decision on the permanent site would be considered then.

Initial debate in the assembly's permanent site committee yesterday indicated that the assembly will not reach a decision before it closes this session within the next week. The most it is likely to do is to select a place for the September assembly meeting.

insist that Makin's declaration should state that the presence of British troops in Greece creates a menace to peace, and would not insist upon withdrawal of British troops from Greece.

Dismissal of the Greek case cleared the gloom over the UNO. Hardly a delegate had believed that Vishinsky would back down on all major points far enough to give Bevin such a complete victory.

The only original point that Bevin failed to win was a formal vote of the council on whether Britain was guilty of the Russian charges. Bevin had demanded a "clean bill" for Britain.

The assembly president, Paul Henri Spaak, warned the steering committee that unless the delegates speeded up it might be impossible to adjourn this session before the end of the week.

EARL BROWDER MAY BE OUSTED BY COMMUNISTS

NEW YORK, Feb. 7—Earl Browder, former Communist leader, faced expulsion from the party today on the grounds that he had become an adviser to big business.

The national board of the Communist party recommended his expulsion last night in a statement which will be submitted to the party's national committee Feb. 12 for final action. The statement said Browder "typically refused to reply to charges" at a hearing yesterday.

The statement also charged that Browder "arrogantly defends his anti-Marxist position and views, attacks the political line and decisions of the party, slanders Comrade Foster (William Z. Foster, leader of the reactivated party)—attempts to involve certain comrades in his anti-party conspiracy."

"If at any time world conditions require an increase in the naval strength of the United States, vessels can be withdrawn from the reserve fleets and added to the active fleets," Forrestal said.

"The nation, therefore, will be able, if it is willing to do so, to keep its naval strength in realistic relation to its international commitments."

"America's ability to win wars and to preserve peace encompasses the seas and the skies above them."

"Control of those seas and skies is the responsibility of a modern sea-air navy."

The secretary added that naval power is the "key to our security and to our ability to reach out anywhere in the world to help stop aggression."

Forrestal outlined the mission of U. S. armed forces during the immediate postwar future as:

1. Enforcing the terms of peace on our enemies.
2. Fulfilling our military commitments under the United Nations organization.
3. Collaborating in preserving the integrity of the western hemisphere.
4. Providing for the security of the United States.

Asked directly whether he planned to withdraw Pauley's nomination, the President said no; that he was backing Pauley because he believed he was an honest man and an excellent administrator.

Rumors that the Pauley nomination might be withdrawn had been heard as Republican senators—who have been fighting the Pauley appointment—turned their fire on another Truman nomination, that of George E. Allen as a director of the Reconstruction Finance Corp.

Opposition to Pauley, a California oil man and former Democratic national treasurer, has been fed by testimony at senate naval affairs committee hearings on his qualifications.

Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes testified that Pauley, in his party role, tried to persuade him to drop a federal suit for title to oil-bearing tidelands.

Pauley repeatedly denied the charge. He said Ickes was confused and had misunderstood their conversation.

Mr. Truman expressed a similar view; he said Ickes could well have been mistaken.

STEEL STRIKE MAY BE ENDED BY SATURDAY

Government Official Says Dispute 'Is Virtually Settled' Now

who were attempting to prevent the movement of a freight train over the strikebound Toledo, Peoria & Western railroad lines.

4. Eighteen thousand members of District 33, United Steel Workers of America (CIO) decided to join the nationwide steel strike at 12:01 a.m. Friday, 24 hours after the expiration of the cooling off period required by Minnesota state law.

5. Federal labor mediator James F. Dewey said a steel strike settlement probably would lead to an agreement between General Motors Corp. and 175,000 striking CIO United Auto Workers.

The house of representatives yesterday gave tentative approval to legislation which would make unions and companies liable in the courts for violation of contracts, fix a 30-day cooling-off period before strikes may be called, set up a six-man mediation board and ban picketing violence, union boycotts and foremen's unions.

The bill was supported by a strong coalition of Republicans and southern Democrats who beat down all efforts to soften it.

Spurred by a critical fuel shortage, Mayor William O'Dwyer declared a state of emergency. The office of defense transportation prepared to man the strikebound tugboats with Army and Navy personnel and civilian recruits.

Some 3,500 members of the AFL longshoremen's association struck Monday to enforce wage demands. They voted not to return to work, even in the face of government seizure.

locomotive, a loaded coal car and two steel cabooses which union officials said had been reinforced with steel plate to form veritable "rolling fortresses."

They charged that a boiler plate shield had been erected at one end of the car, with specially-constructed gun openings. Railroad officials did not comment.

Yesterday's battle was the second instance of violence since two railroad brotherhoods struck against the road four months ago in a long-standing dispute over operating rules. Previously a picket had been shot by a railroad employee when several empty freight trains were moved from the Peoria yards.

LAUSCHE TELLS FARMERS EUROPE MUST BE HELPED

COLUMBUS, Feb. 7.—Gov. Frank J. Lausche told a farm and home week audience at Ohio State University last night that America must be merciful in the face of the threat of hunger over the world.

"There will be hunger in Europe in spite of all we can do," Lausche said. "It is the genius of America to be merciful. The call is clear. There can be no equivocation."

Lausche took a stand against sharing atomic bomb information with other nations.

"Have all our allies indicted we can repose full confidence in them?" he asked. "In my opinion there must be a greater democratization of this before we can be justified in revealing our secrets."

The governor's address followed a talk by F. J. Maurer, Fostoria, manager of the Ohio Farmers Grain Corp., who said there is a definite shortage in the wheat crop now.

mechanism of distributing documents among the delegates."

Broustra proposed the selection now only of interim headquarters, leaving the permanent site for further study.

Russia and China set back an Australian campaign for a west coast site by strongly supporting the inspection committee's recommendation of the Stamford-Greenwich area.

China originally gave strong support to the campaign for San Francisco. The Chinese spokesman admitted the Stamford-Greenwich site probably would be "a little more expensive" than some others. But he reminded the delegates that any site would cost money.

He added that the UNO should not be overly concerned with unfavorable reaction from residents of the area, because "it would happen anywhere except in the wilderness."

A movement was under foot under Australian leadership to select San Francisco as the interim site for the next assembly meeting in September. A decision on the permanent site would be considered then.

Initial debate in the assembly's permanent site committee yesterday indicated that the assembly will not reach a decision before it closes this session within the next week. The most it is likely to do is to select a place for the September assembly meeting.

insist that Makin's declaration should state that the presence of British troops in Greece creates a menace to peace, and would not insist upon withdrawal of British troops from Greece.

Dismissal of the Greek case cleared the gloom over the UNO. Hardly a delegate had believed that Vishinsky would back down on all major points far enough to give Bevin such a complete victory.

The only original point that Bevin failed to win was a formal vote of the council on whether Britain was guilty of the Russian charges. Bevin had demanded a "clean bill" for Britain.

The assembly president, Paul-Henri Spaak, warned the steering committee that unless the delegates speeded up it might be impossible to adjourn this session before the end of the week.

EARL BROWDER MAY BE OUSTED BY COMMUNISTS

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—Earl Browder, former Communist leader, faced expulsion from the party today on the grounds that he had become an adviser to big business.

The national board of the Communist party recommended his expulsion last night in a statement which will be submitted to the party's national committee Feb. 12 for final action. The statement said Browder " cynically refused to reply to charges" at a hearing yesterday.

The statement also charged that Browder "arrogantly defends his anti-Marxist position and views, attacks the political line and decisions of the party, slanders Comrade Foster (William Z. Foster, leader of the reactivated party)—attempts to involve certain comrades in his anti-party conspiracy."

ships in its ready reserve fleet. The balance of the wartime force will be placed in the Navy's so-called "laid-up" reserve fleet.

"If at any time world conditions require an increase in the naval strength of the United States, vessels can be withdrawn from the reserve fleets and added to the active fleets," Forrestal said.

"The nation, therefore, will be able, if it is willing to do so, to keep its naval strength in realistic relation to its international commitments."

"America's ability to win wars and to preserve peace encompasses the seas and the skies above them."

"Control of those seas and skies is the responsibility of a modern sea-air navy."

The secretary added that naval power is the "key to our security and to our ability to reach out anywhere in the world to help stop aggression."

Forrestal outlined the mission of U. S. armed forces during the immediate postwar future as:

1. Enforcing the terms of peace on our enemies.
2. Fulfilling our military commitments under the United Nations organization.
3. Collaborating in preserving the integrity of the western hemisphere.
4. Providing for the security of the United States.

HYDROPONICS IS POPULAR TOPIC

Growing Plants With Roots In Water Discussed By Specialists

The Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station still receives many requests for information about hydroponics. Although the word "hydroponics" was originally developed to mean the culture of plants which grow with their roots in water to which the nutritive elements are added, it is now used frequently to refer to all types of nutrient-solution cultures.

L. J. Alexander, of the Department of Botany and Plant Pathology of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, explains that there are two general types of hydroponics: subirrigated cultures, where the roots grow in an inert medium such as haydite or gravel; and liquid cultures, where the roots grow in water. Both types of cultures produce excellent results. However, the sub-irrigated type has a wider adaptability because the inert medium furnishes support for small vegetable and flower plants and is also simpler to use in small home installations. The liquid-type culture is admirably adapted for larger installations with such crops as tomatoes and cucumbers which have to be supported. The same nutrient solution can be used in either type of culture. A nutrient solution which has proven satisfactory for vegetables at the Ohio Station is composed of the following fertilizer salts, expressed in ounces per 10 gallons of solution: Nitrate soda 0.7 ounce, potassium sulfate 0.7 ounce, calcium sulfate (gypsum) 1.8 ounces, magnesium sulfate (epsom salts)

0.6 ounce, and mono-calcium phosphate (treble superphosphate) 0.1 ounce. To these salts it is necessary to add minute traces of iron. If plants are grown for long, it is also advisable to add traces (1/2 part per million) of boron and manganese. This nutrient solution is adjusted to a pH of 6.0

with sulfuric acid. Since the pH of the solution changes from day to day, frequent adjustments are necessary. Also, frequent additions of iron may be needed. This is added at the rate of 1/2 part per million and renewed frequently enough to keep the plants from turning yellow. Poorly tended cultures invariably lead to disappointment well tended cultures produce excellent and gratifying crops.

Mr. and Mrs. Leland Kern of Lancaster and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gray of Cincinnati visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Warner, Sunday.

CONSERVATION OF SOIL BEING STRESSED AGAIN

Now that the war is over, the AAA farm program is once more emphasizing long-time conservation measures, John Boggs, Chairman of the AAA county committee, said today.

"As long as we had to keep food moving to war fronts, we had to do everything we could to increase yields and total crop production, no matter what the cost," Mr. Boggs explained. "Now we must start putting back the soil fertility we used to help win the war."

The 1946 AAA program should be a big help to farmers in converting their farms to peacetime production, Mr. Boggs said. Money authorized by congress for the program is being allocated to counties. As far as possible, it will be spent in obtaining the soil improvements needed on individual farms.

Each farmer will be able to go over his plans with AAA committees, and pick out approved practices for his farm. After all farmer plans in the county are received, they will be considered in the light of the total funds available. AAA committees will be responsible for getting as much conservation as they can for the money allocated to the county.

In order to keep on close check on practices, the county committee is requiring farmers who wish AAA assistance to get prior approval in advance of carrying out practices.

Nelson Valentine called in the afternoon.

Growing Plants With Roots In Water Discussed By Specialists

The Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station still receives many requests for information about hydroponics. Although the word "hydroponics" was originally developed to mean the culture of plants which grow with their roots in water to which the nutritive elements are added, it is now used frequently to refer to all types of nutrient-solution cultures.

L. J. Alexander, of the Department of Botany and Plant Pathology of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, explains that there are the two general types of hydroponics: subirrigated cultures, where the roots grow in an inert medium such as haydite or gravel; and liquid cultures, where the roots grow in water. Both types of cultures produce excellent results. However, the sub-irrigated type has a wider adaptability because the inert medium furnishes support for small vegetable and flower plants and is also simpler to use in small home installations. The liquid-type culture is admirably adapted for larger installations with such crops as tomatoes and cucumbers which have to be supported. The same nutrient solution can be used in either type of culture. A nutrient solution which has proven satisfactory for vegetables at the Ohio Station is composed of the following fertilizer salts, expressed in ounces per 10 gallons of solution: Nitrate soda 0.7 ounce, potassium sulfate 0.7 ounce, calcium sulfate (gypsum) 1.8 ounces, magnesium sulfate (epsom salts)

0.6 ounce, and mono-calcium phosphate (treble superphosphate) 0.1 ounce. To these salts it is necessary to add minute traces of iron. If plants are grown for long, it is also advisable to add traces (1/2 part per million) of boron and manganese. This nutrient solution is adjusted to a pH of 6.0

with sulfuric acid. Since the pH of the solution changes from day to day, frequent adjustments are necessary. Also, frequent additions of iron may be needed. This is added at the rate of 1/4 part per million and renewed frequently enough to keep the plants from turning yellow. Poorly tended cultures invariably lead to disappointment well tended cultures produce excellent and gratifying crops. Mr. and Mrs. Leland Kern of Lancaster and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gray of Cincinnati visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Warner, Sunday.

YAMASHITA WILL DIE SOON FOR ATROCITY WORK

Jap General's Last Chance Fails When MacArthur Affirms Sentence

TOKYO, Feb. 7.—Lt. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, the once haughty "Tiger of Malaya," must die on the gallows for his responsibility in the atrocity deaths of 60,000 Americans and Filipinos in the Philippines.

His last avenue of possible escape from the penalty imposed by a U. S. military commission in Manila was closed today when Gen. Douglas MacArthur affirmed his conviction and sentence. MacArthur's finding was final.

The supreme Allied commander directed the commanding general of the western Pacific Army forces to execute the judgment. Headquarters spokesmen said they did not expect any further delay in carrying out the sentence and believed Lt. Gen. W. D. Styer, western Pacific commander, would set the hanging date shortly.

A dispatch from Manila said that Western Pacific headquarters already had announced that news-men would be banned from witnessing the execution. The announcement gave no further details.

Yamashita, first major Japanese war criminal to be tried, was convicted by the commission last Dec. 7 for condoning the murder, torture and rape of Filipinos and allied civilians.

In announcing confirmation of the sentence, MacArthur blasted the stony-faced general for "violating the sacred trust of a soldier, profaning the military profession and threatening the very fabric of international society."

"It is not easy for me to pass penal judgment upon a defeated adversary in a major military campaign," MacArthur's statement said. "I have reviewed the proceedings in vain, searching for some mitigating circumstance on his behalf. I can find none."

"A soldier, be he friend or foe, is charged with protection of the weak and unarmed. It is the very essence and reason for his being," MacArthur termed Yamashita's record a blot upon the military profession and a "memory of shame and dishonor that can never be forgotten."

The U. S. supreme court refused a defense plea for a review of the case. The court held Yamashita had been given a fair and legal trial and that the military tribunal was legally established under presidential order.

GARDENS WILL CONTINUE TO BE POPULAR HERE

Since there will be as much food needed for local consumption and shipments abroad, Victory gardens must continue to be high on the production list, Farm Bureau Cooperative Association specialists in Columbus revealed today. They saw no visible let-up in the need for food although victory is months gone.

Aside from the material returns from Victory gardens, there is the matter of health to be considered. Most families who spent some of their time in their gardens during the war will want to continue that practice, it was said.

Many city garden enthusiasts have found that higher yields are their rewards through proper fertilization of the soil. If their efforts at first seemed fruitless, they have found their ground needed building up and they should continue to reap rewards from their compost heaps and additional commercial fertilizer.

Adequate supplies of garden fertilizer will be available again this year, the specialists reported. Most gardens require the application of about four pounds per 100 square feet. In addition to better yields, most gardens, properly fertilized, will produce better tasting, highly nutritional vegetables with maximum vitamin content and minerals.

YOUR HOME DESERVES THE BEST

It's real economy to install the best quality electrical wiring devices — tested design, quality made. Convenience outlets—switches—fixtures—your home deserves the best. When you remodel or build, ask your electrical contractor to tell you about Underwriters' Approved wiring devices.

WIRE FOR THE FUTURE....

- YOUR CHECK-LIST FOR ELECTRICAL SERVICES
- ☐ ADEQUATE SERVICE ENTRANCE Large enough wire and service switch to carry sufficient load for the entire home.
 - ☐ MODERN PROTECTION Install circuit-breakers, an improvement over fuses. This protective device accommodates momentary peak loads, "cuts out" only when the extra load continues.
 - ☐ ENOUGH CIRCUITS There's a limit to the number of lights and appliances electrical wiring can supply — make sure your new wiring has enough circuits to supply all areas.
 - ☐ LARGE ENOUGH WIRES Wire of a given size can carry only so much electricity. Be sure wiring is adequate for present and future needs.
 - ☐ HIGH QUALITY WIRING DEVICES Convenience outlets and switches are made in different qualities — at varying prices. It pays to install the best — Underwriters' Approved quality wiring devices.
 - ☐ ENOUGH OUTLETS An outlet for every appliance and lamp, plus a few extras.

FARMERS ASKED TO INCREASE CORN ACREAGE

Pickaway Quota In 1946 Is 4 Per Cent Higher Than In 1945

Pickaway county farmers are urged to increase their corn acreage 4 per cent in 1946 over the 1945 total, John G. Boggs, chairman of the Pickaway county AAA committee, announced Tuesday. Farmers are asked to grow 80,500 acres of corn.

The goal reflects the request for full production on a national basis. Farmers this year have a two-fold responsibility — that of providing our own people with sufficient quantities of food and fiber and assisting in the feeding of starving nations that are working with us in building a world of peace, Mr. Boggs said. Yet, this responsibility must be tempered by the fact that we are in a period of reconverting from wartime to peacetime production, he added.

Mr. Boggs added: "By strictly following goals set farmers will be adjusting their production to a continued high basis for these commodities for which the demand is still great and to a leveling off in the production of commodities for which the demand has been lessened by the end of the war. It is by this means that we will bridge the gap to normal peacetime production without experiencing surpluses and depressed prices. Our farm goals, having been established on the basis of market requirement, farm production facilities, and soil conservation, are the best guide posts available. It is urged that all farmers give them careful thought and study, and plan their individual 1946 farm operation accordingly."

Strikes At A Glance

By United Press

Strikes and shutdowns kept 1,460,000 American workers away from their jobs today. The major disputes:

Steel—Hopes rose for early settlement of a strike of 750,000 CIO steel workers. Eighteen thousand Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan steel workers announced they would join the walkout Friday.

Automotive—A federal mediator said a steel agreement probably would lead to early settlement of a strike of 175,000 CIO United Auto Workers against General Motors Corp.

Shipping—New York city faced a critical fuel shortage as 3,500 AFL tugboat crewmen refused to work despite government seizure.

Railroads—Two pickets were shot and killed by guards posted on a freight train moving over the strikebound Toledo, Peoria and Western lines at Gridley, Ill.

350 CHICKS DIE IN BLAZE ON VALENTINE FARM

Three hundred and fifty day-old chicks were destroyed in a fire on the Gus Valentine farm, Kingston pike, Wednesday night, Circleville firemen reported.

Fire, which was reported started from a coal brooder, damaged the brooder house considerably, firemen said. No estimate of the damage was made.

Firemen, called at 7:30 p. m., were handicapped by the high winds which swept the county Wednesday night, but managed to limit the fire damage to the brooder house.

TWO MEMBERS ON COMMITTEE NOW; ANDERSON QUILTS

Councilman Ray Anderson has resigned from the newly-created public utilities committee of city council, leaving only two members on the committee—George Crites, chairman, and Donald Mason.

John Goeller, president of council, who appoints all committees said Thursday that he is endeavoring to find a man to fill the place on the committee vacated by Mr. Anderson.

Mr. Goeller has also appointed the following members to the regular standing committees of council:

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 1 pint a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

PUSHING GOVERNMENT AROUND

THE art of government, one of the noblest activities of civilization, seems to be deteriorating lately into what might be called the art of Pushing Presidents Around. The pushing is done by bold individuals and groups who know what they want, and are determined to get it even though their procedure may endanger their nation and the civilization on which it is based.

There seems to be a spirit at work today in the hearts and minds of strong individuals and large groups that is going far from the method and principles on which this nation was founded. It is a spirit which virtually ignores the Constitution, and much of the law and precedent under which we have grown great.

The government at Washington tends to become large and loose, and in it there are too many men who, in the words of St. Paul, are "blown to and fro with every wind of doctrine." The national capital naturally is influenced by events and procedures in the outer world. But the most perilous fact is the growing insistence of strong groups, notably represented by organized labor, to have their way regardless of law, precedent and Constitution. And if the strongest and noblest nation on earth comes to bitter grief, it may be mainly through the arrogance of such groups and the spinelessness of the citizenry which lets them get away with it.

INTER-NATION KINDNESS

A California war widow received a letter from an 11-year old Dutch girl, saying each citizen in her village had been made responsible for a grave in the American cemetery there, and she had been assigned that of the woman's late husband, a World War II sergeant. Was there any kind of flowers the American would like particularly to have put at his resting place?

While thousands upon thousands of American dead have been lost or lie in lands of the enemy where there can be no friendly flower tokens, such a gesture as that of the Dutch girl and her village goes straight to America's heart and becomes a shining symbol of a binding friendship with Holland.

Sure, this nation has a huge debt—but we can pay it all right if we turn thrifty and get to making things people are waiting for.

The United Nations now are going to need an international language, and any of the English-speaking nations can tell 'em what to do about it.

It's the little things that count—including half a cent per hour in wages.

Definition of a comfortable income: what most people would have if they did have to pay income tax.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Some people say publicly and privately there is no such thing in these days as truth or justice. A wise and philosophical lawyer friend of mine, bundled up this entire new theory by adding that when truth and justice died, the law died with them; that there is now no law either.

The law, he said, concretely has become whatever the judge happens to believe is socially beneficial—that day. It may be something otherwise tomorrow. It is, he contended, the socio-political beliefs of politicians on the bench, no longer concerning itself primarily with what is justice to the humans involved. As judges have varied so widely in their theories, any accepted standard which might accurately be called "the law" is nonexistent.

Truth, he said, is only what a person happens to think at the moment, about any given situation—there is no exact truth, no accepted popular standard of what truth is ...

And who can say what is justice, exact justice, between the strikers and the managements over demands for wage increases, for instance. In the face of altering prices and standards, unfair union monopolies and unfair business monopolies, how are you going to figure justice? It is a non-existent and impossible theory which cannot even be defined, he said.

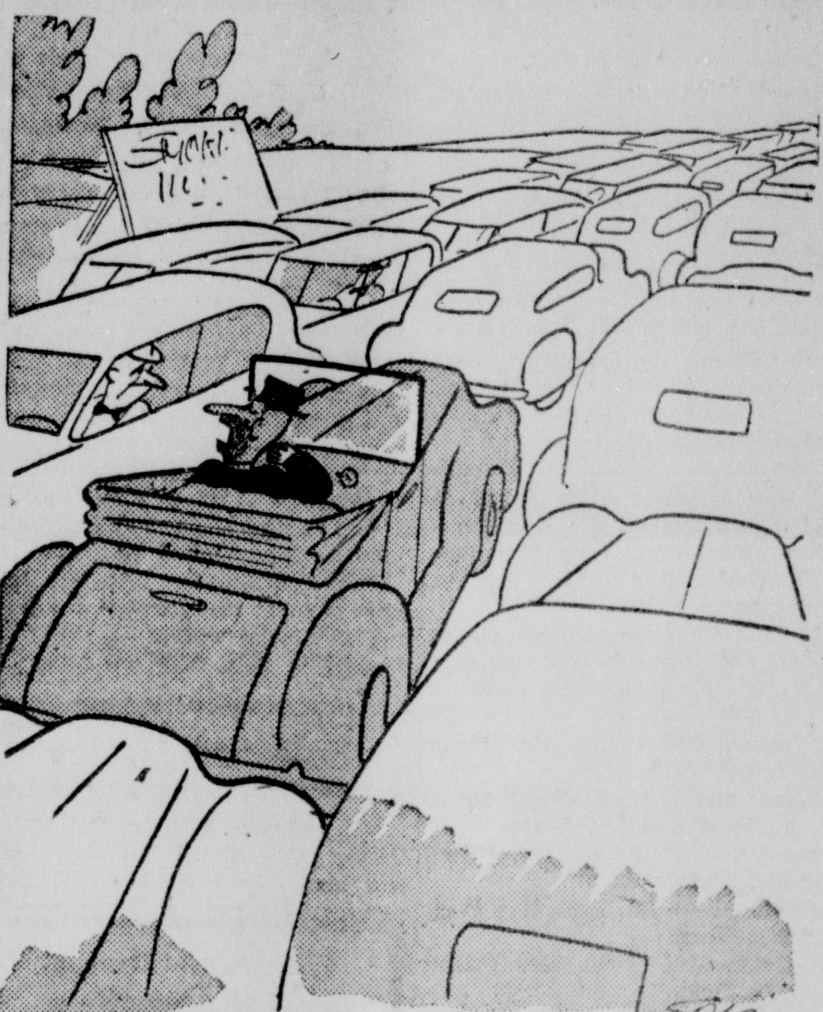

By this time I yelled, "wait-a-minute", and leaped in for a few words, to wit these: there is truth and justice, and there is such a thing as the law. You have gotten yourself into a confused state of mind by reading the statements, actions, decisions and speeches of men who happen to be in positions of power for a brief few years. They do not know what truth and justice are, and are getting you to share their confusion, which could be dispelled if you devoted your mind independently to plain considerations.

First, what has happened to the law? A personally and politically embittered supreme court, divided three and often more ways, started conducting a social reform revolution by revising the legal standard. They attempted to effect a social revolution that neither the President nor congress could accomplish, but all they succeeded in doing was to break down the old standards. They did not erect any new standard to which honest men could repair. They destroyed what was old. They failed to create any substitute. This has caused the confusion. It cannot endure; indeed it has not actually prevailed. For instance, they said Nevada divorces were not good in other states and jeopardized hundreds of thousands of marriages, and they failed to establish a standard for these jeopardized couples. But no one paid the slightest attention to them. No one was re-married or re-divorced. Their decision did not prevail.

Now truth is not alone what I think, but what you and I agree. It is agreed actually. So also with justice, which is an agreed form of fairness. Now if you speak of truth and justice in the sense of poetic perfection, you will wait until heaven for it. But there is a live thing humans may discern as truth, and agreed standard of what truth is—or should be. The people know it, want it. A plan of common honesty in objective thought, for example, will endure time as truth, despite attack by a million fools. Truth may be obscured but cannot be exterminated. DIET AND HEALTH

Your Attitude Toward Food

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

WHY do most of us eat three meals a day? Because Nature endowed us with hunger pains and these hunger pains stimulate a desire for food. This desire is commonly known as appetite. But, even hunger pains will not make a person eat if there are certain factors operating which make him lose his appetite.

Eating should be a source of pleasure and comfort, although, of course, it should be borne in mind that we eat to live, not live to eat. Anything that interferes with the pleasure of eating will lessen the desire for food.

Unpleasant Eating

Martha Koehne of Ohio, has suggested a number of things which make eating unpleasant. These include unpleasant scenes at the table, scolding or nagging a person about what he eats and how much of it he eats, punishing a child just before, during or after a meal for bad behavior, quarrels at meal times, forcing anyone to eat what he does not want, serving food that is unattractive or tastes badly, giving too much of a food, eating when uncomfortable, and depriving a young child of the privilege of feeding himself because he may spill food.

Perhaps the greatest cause of poor appetite in children is the result of efforts on the part of the parent to get foods into the child when he does not want them. Giving too large portions or even giving too great a variety of foods may spoil the appetite. Decayed teeth that hurt, indigestion, constipation, colds and sore throats, as well as many infections, also may interfere with the appetite.

Parents' Tastes

Many parents get into the habit of trying to foist on their children the ideas which they, themselves, may have concerning foods and eating. For example, the parents may have a prejudice against certain foods or some mistaken idea of foods in certain combinations. It is not unusual to hear parents say that they have inherited a dislike for certain foods and that there is nothing which can be done about it.

Others think that what they have to do is to be guided by their instincts and they will choose the right foods. Then they think that if they dislike a certain food they should not eat it because it would not be digested. And there is the faulty notion that eating acid-tasting foods with milk or with starchy foods may lead to trouble, or eating fish, milk, or meat with starchy foods may be harmful, and, of course these ideas have no scientific support.

Adopting a sensible attitude toward foods and appetite by supplying the right foods and not attempting to force the child to eat, will help to get rid of many of the eating problems.

A JOB FOR JENNY

SYNOPSIS

At the Seaboard Shipyard, young Jennifer Newton, whose late father once owned the place, is replacing attractive Charlotte Granley as secretary to Justice Hathaway, manager and son of the present owner. Justice's wife, Andrea, is engaged in war work in England, where she had gone to live four years before, following the death of their only child. Jenny suspects that Charlotte, who is leaving to join the War, is in love with Justice. She is puzzled when Charlotte casually mentions having seen Jenny's pretty sister, Ede, in Boston with Justice a few weeks ago. Ede's husband, Dick, a captain in the Marines, is overseas, and she and Jenny live with their grandmother. After Charlotte had gone, Jenny and her new boss talk of Ede and Mary Hathaway. Justice's attractive sister, who has been doing Red Cross work together. While Justice dictates Jenny does a little day dreaming about young Dr. Steve Barton, recently wounded in action. She hoped he would be coming home soon. Later that evening she gives Gram and Ede a detailed account of her first day in the new job.

CHAPTER SIX

EDE asked, "How did things go?"

Jenny turned. She said, "Gram asked me, now you. How should they go? They went wonderfully. I am practically the best secretary in the state."

Ede smiled. "Charlotte Granley wouldn't like to hear you say that."

"I didn't know you even knew each other," said Jenny.

"I don't, really," said Ede. "She was up at the Hathaway place one day when I was there."

"Well, she's gone to be an admiral or something," said Jenny. "And the big shot will have to make do with me. Ede, you've met him—he asked about you today—don't you think he's terribly good looking?"

"Oh, sure," said Ede, "by Seaboard standards. . . . He asked about me," she added, "what?"

"Just how you were, and had you heard from Dick," said Jenny vaguely. She rose. She said, to the cat, "Butch, 'on't you dare deliver while I'm at supper—and I have an engagement afterward, remember."

"You ought to get rid of that cat," said Ede, as they went out into the hall together, "you're always racing around helping her have kittens, and then finding a home for them."

"Steve gave her to me," said Jenny, "when she was just a kitten and cute as a bug. I don't care how many kittens she has. That's her nature, poor dear."

Ede said, "Tolerant, aren't you? What about Steve?"

"I don't know any more than you do," said Jenny, "but I wish he'd come home soon. It's going to be swell having him around again."

"I'm not so sure," said Ede, "for him . . . after all, he hadn't into general practice. He'd planned to be a surgeon."

Gram called, "Girls—are you ready?" and Jenny whispered, "She's not feeling affectionate, Ede. She did ask you to get the table."

"I'm sorry," said Ede. "I started manicuring my nails—though why I bother trying new shades in this place I wouldn't know—and forgot."

At supper Jenny sat, frowning, a forkful of corned beef suspended in mid-air. She asked presently, "Ede, what was that about Mary Hathaway? I'm trying to remember and can't. Didn't we hear she'd been engaged or something?"

"She was," said Ede, "and the invitations were out and then it was called off."

"I wonder why," asked Jenny. "I haven't seen her more than two or three times, but she's very attractive."

Gram said, "Gossip . . ."

"Not really, I remember now, it was in the papers," Jenny defended herself.

Gram said, "Every woman is permitted to change her mind. Your mother was engaged before she met your father."

"Well, for heaven's sake!" said Jenny. "She was who to?"

"If you, in your work, I wonder Mr. Hathaway selected you from all the other secretaries."

"Oh," said Jenny, "that's all right. At home I take 'em mental and linguistic corsets. To whom, darling?" she asked politely.

"To Bert Barton."

Jenny dropped her fork and Ede gasped. They cried, with one voice, "No one ever told me!"

"It never came up before," said Gram. "Your mother met your father again—he had been away from Seaboard for some time—and that was that. Bert was very unhappy about it, but after all he was a good deal older than herself. Then he met Sarah in Providence, and married her. You don't remember her, do you?"

"I do too," said Jenny indignantly. "She didn't die until I was seven or eight. She was beautiful, and she made the best cookies!"

She rose presently, cleared away and brought in the stewed rhubarb and cupcakes. She said dreamily, "I wonder why Justice Hathaway's wife stays away from home . . ."

Ede put down her spoon. She said, "Jenny, you're crazy tonight. All you do is wonder."

"It's a free country," said Jenny, "and I think it's funny, just the same!"

After the dishes had been cleared, after Jenny and Gram had washed them, as Ede had too much respect for her new polish, Jenny went upstairs to change. She put her head in at Ede's door. Ede was writing letters at the old maple desk. Her pale-gold hair glowed under the light, she looked very young and lonely and Jenny's heart ached for her. She asked, "Want to walk around to Barton's with me?"

"I guess not," said Ede. "She turned and smiled. She added, 'I'm going to finish my letter and mail it and then go down to the drug store and see if there's a book I haven't read. I forgot to go to the lending library.'"

"Okay," said Jenny. "By," said Ede. "I hope the news of Steve is good."

A little later, after putting Butch in the cellar, Jenny left the house, went down the street, turned the corner and walked for another block. The wind was cool, and a new moon hung, silver, in the dark sky. At the Bartons', a green light burned over the lovely door. The house was nearly a replica of the Newtons', even to the captain's walk. The doctor's office had a separate entrance and, looking through an unshaded window, Jenny could see that a patient, an elderly man, waited in the reception room. So she went in at the back door to the kitchen where the doctor's housekeeper sat at the scrubbed table, reading.

"Hi, Mattie," said Jenny. "Is Uncle Bert going out after office hours?"

Mattie took off her glasses. She was a few years old and looked like a slightly frost-bitten apple. She doubled in brass as receptionist and message taker since the office maid had joined the Army Nurse Corps. She said:

"No one's called him yet, Jenny. And I hope to the Lord they won't. He ain't well. I'm worried about him. He's been to see Dr. Mathews twice to my knowledge, not that he'd come right out and tell me. I've been so worried I even wrote Steve. Now I wish I hadn't, as he has enough on his plate, poor boy."

Jenny sat down by the table and reached absently for a hot doughnut which, with a dozen others, were on a blue plate on the table.

"Have you heard from Steve?" she asked, "since he telephoned?"

"Yes," said Mattie. "He's coming home. Not that I wanted anything necessarily, 'but since it had to happen, and wasn't too bad, thank God, now maybe he'll settle down and take some of the burden off his father's shoulders."

Jenny drew a deep breath. "Just how bad is it?" she asked. "Uncle Bert wasn't sure . . . last time I saw him."

"The hand's stiff," said Mattie. "Two fingers are bent. They're doing things for it."

"Will it always be stiff?" Jenny asked anxiously. She added, "It's his right hand!"

"I know," said Mattie. "Steve's heart is set on surgery and he won't get over this easy. But it can't be helped."

"Battleship" Boys

Await Atomic Test

They'll Be Surprised

If Damage Is Great

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—The "battleship" boys are keeping mum on the forthcoming tests of the atomic bomb against seapower, but privately they contend it won't cause near the damage that some expect.

Even if there is severe damage to the fleet of 90-odd warships and other vessels to be anchored in the Marshalls, old-line Navy men are expected to argue that the tests cannot be conclusive unless tried against modern ships under war-time conditions.

Several battleships were sunk on both sides by air power in the war, but after each sinking the proponents of sea power tried to rationalize the results.

Battleship supporters claimed Pearl Harbor wasn't a fair test because we were not prepared to fight back on that occasion. When American planes began to sink Jap battleships, the answer was that Nippon failed to provide adequate air cover.

Thus the coming atomic tests may merely supply more fuel for an old, old argument.

There appears little likelihood that administration committee members and opponents of the Roosevelt-Truman policies will get together and agree on a single report. There has been too much committee friction.

success of the sneak Japanese attack pretty much where the Army and Navy boards placed it—with possibly a complete vindication of former Secretary of State Hull and less criticism of Gen. George C. Marshall.

The minority findings, however, probably will soften the blame attached to Adm. Husband E. Kimmel and Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short, Pearl Harbor commanders. Anti-administration forces feel they were "scapegoats" in earlier probes.

For example, the parents may have a prejudice against certain foods or some mistaken idea of foods in certain combinations. It is not unusual to hear parents say that they have inherited a dislike for certain foods and that there is nothing which can be done about it.

Others think that what they have to do is to be guided by their instincts and they will choose the right foods. Then they think that if they dislike a certain food they should not eat it because it would not be digested. And there is the faulty notion that eating acid-tasting foods with milk or with starchy foods may lead to trouble, or eating fish, milk, or meat with starchy foods may be harmful, and, of course these ideas have no scientific support.

Adopting a sensible attitude toward foods and appetite by supplying the right foods and not attempting to force the child to eat, will help to get rid of many of the eating problems.

A JOB FOR JENNY

by Faith Baldwin

SYNOPSIS

At the Seaboard Shipyard, young Jennifer Newton, whose late father once owned the place, is replacing attractive Charlotte Granley as secretary to Justice Hathaway, manager and son of the present owner. Justice's wife, Andrea, is engaged in war work in England, where she had gone to live four years before, following the death of their only child. Jenny suspects that Charlotte, who is leaving to join the Waves, is in love with Justice. She is puzzled when Charlotte casually mentions having seen Jenny's pretty sister, Ede, in Boston with Justice a few weeks ago. Ede's husband, Dick, a captain in the Marines, is overseas, and she and Jenny live with their grandmother. After Charlotte had gone, Jenny and her new boss talk of Ede and Mr. Hathaway. Justice's attractive sister, who have been doing Red Cross work together. While Justice crosses Jenny does a little day dreaming about young Dr. Steve Barton, recently wounded in action. She hoped he would be coming home soon. Later that evening she gives Gram and Ede a detailed account of her first day in the new job.

CHAPTER SIX

EDE asked, "How did things go?"

Jenny turned. She said, "Gram asked me, now you. How should they go? They went wonderfully. I am practically the best secretary in the state."

Ede smiled. "Charlotte Granley wouldn't like to hear you say that."

"I didn't know you ever knew each other," said Jenny.

"I don't, really," said Ede. "She was up at the Hathaway place one day when I was there."

"Well, she's gone to be an admiral or something," said Jenny, "and the big shot will have to make do with me. Ede, you've met him—he asked about you today—don't you think he's terribly good looking?"

"Oh, sure," said Ede, "by Seaboard standards. . . . He asked about me," she added, "what?"

"Just how you were, and had you heard from Dick," said Jenny vaguely. She rose. She said, to the cat, "Butch, 'don't you dare deliver while I'm at supper—and I have an engagement afterward, remember."

"You ought to get rid of that cat," said Ede, as they went out into the hall together, "you're always racing around helping her ways kittens, and then finding a home for them."

"Steve gave her to me," said Jenny, "when she was just a kitten and cute as a bug. I don't care how many kittens she has. That's her nature, poor dear."

Ede said, "Tolerant, aren't you? What about Steve?"

"I don't know any more than you do," said Jenny, "but I wish he'd come home soon. It's going to be swell having him around again."

"I'm not so sure," said Ede, "for him . . . after all, he hadn't in general practice. He'd planned to be a surgeon."

Gram called, "Girls—are you ready?" and Jenny whispered, "She's not feeling affectionate, Ede. She did ask you to set the table."

"I'm sorry," said Ede. "I started manicuring my nails—though why I bother trying new shades in this place I wouldn't know—and forgot."

At supper Jenny sat, frowning, a forkful of corned beef suspended in mid-air. She asked presently, "Ede, what was that about Mary Hathaway? I'm trying to remember and can't. Didn't we hear she'd been engaged or something?"

"She was," said Ede, "and the invitations were out and then it was called off."

"I wonder why," asked Jenny. "I haven't seen her more than two or three times, but she's very attractive."

Gram said, "Gossip . . ."

"Not really, I remember now, it was in the papers," Jenny defended herself.

Gram said, "Every woman is permitted to change her mind. Your mother was engaged before she met your father."

"Well, for heaven's sake!" said Jenny. "She was? Who to?"

"If your grammar is as careless," said Gram, "in your work, I wonder Mr. Hathaway selected you from all the other secretaries."

"Oh," said Jenny, "that's all right. At home I take o mental and linguistic corsets. To whom, darling?" she asked politely.

"To Bert Barton."

Jenny dropped her fork and Ede gasped. They cried, with one voice, "No one ever told me!"

"It never came up before," said Gram. "Your mother met your father again—he had been away from Seaboard for some time—and that was that. Bert was very unhappy about it, but after all he was a good deal older than herself. Then he met Sarah in Providence, and married her. You don't remember her, do you?"

"I do too," said Jenny indignantly. "She didn't die until I was seven or eight. She was beautiful, and she made the best cookies!"

She rose presently, cleared away, and brought in the stewed rhubarb and cupcake. She had dreamily, "I wonder why Justice Hathaway's wife stays away from home . . ."

Ede put down her spoon. She said, "Jenny, you're crazy tonight. All you do is wonder."

"It's a free country," said Jenny, "and I think it's funny, just the same!"

After the dishes had been cleared, after Jenny and Gram had washed them, as Ede had too much respect for her new polish, Jenny went upstairs to change. She put her head in at Ede's door. Ede was writing letters at the old maple desk. Her pale-gold hair glowed under the light, she looked very young and lonely and Jenny's heart ached planned to come back here and go for her. She asked, "Want to walk around to Barton's with me?"

"I guess not," said Ede. She turned and smiled. She added, "I'm going to finish my letter and mail it and then go down to the drug store and see if there's a book I haven't read. I forgot to go to the lending library."

"Okay," said Jenny. "By."

"Give my love to Uncle Bert," said Ede. "I hope the news of Steve is good."

A little later, after putting Butch in the cellar, Jenny left the house, went down the street, turned the corner and walked for another block. The wind was cool, and a new moon hung, silver, in the dark sky. At the Bartons', a green light burned over the lovely door. The house was nearly a replica of the Newtons', even to the captain's walk. The doctor's office had a separate entrance and, looking through an unshaded window, Jenny could see that a patient, an elderly man, waited in the reception room. So she went in at the back door to the kitchen where the doctor's housekeeper sat at the scrubbed table, reading.

"Hi, Mattie," said Jenny. "Uncle Bert going out after office hours?"

Mattie took off her glasses. She was 60 years old and looked like a slightly frosted-bitten apple. She doubled in brass as receptionist and message taker since the office maid had joined the Army Nurse Corps. She said:

"No one's called him yet, Jenny, and I hope to the Lord they won't. He ain't well. I'm worried about him. He's been to see Dr. Mathews twice to my knowledge, not that he'd come right out and tell me. I've been so worried I even wrote Steve. Now I wish I hadn't, as he has enough on his plate, poor boy."

Jenny sat down by the table and reached absently for a hot doughnut which, with a dozen others, were on a blue plate on the table.

"Have you heard from Steve?" she asked, "since he telephoned?"

"Yes," said Mattie. "He's coming home. Not that I wanted anything to happen to the boy," she said unnecessarily, "but since it had to happen, and wasn't too bad, thank God, now maybe he'll settle down and take some of the burden off his father's shoulders."

Jenny drew a deep breath. "Just how bad is it?" she asked. "Uncle Bert wasn't sure . . . last time I saw him."

"The hand's stiff," said Mattie. "Two fingers are bent. They're doing things for it."

"Will it always be stiff?" Jenny asked anxiously. She added, "It's his right hand!"

"I know," said Mattie. "Steve's heart's been on surgery and he won't get over this easy. But it can't be helped."

TIGERS TO PLAY WASHINGTON 5 FRIDAY NIGHT

CHS Quint Wants Victory In SCO Contest At Roll And Bowl

Circleville high school cagers play their second home game of the week Friday night, entertaining Washington C. H. in a South Central Ohio league contest.

This is the first meeting of the year of these two teams. They were originally scheduled to play at Washington C. H. December 21 but the game was postponed because of illness in the schools.

Washington started slowly but had a record of five straight victories before bumping into Chillicothe last week. The team is good-sized and has proved troublesome for most SCO foes.

With the Ashville game out of their systems, fans are hoping the Tigers can regain the form they displayed at Wilmington last Friday when they got revenge on the Hurricane five that won here. They were dropping in baskets regularly on the Wilmington floor while playing one of their best games of the season.

Coach John Daugherty probably will use the same five boys who started Tuesday night: Jack Henrichs, "Skeet" Smallwood, Bob Steele, Bob McCoy and Wilson Clark. Ready to step in when needed will be J. M. Stout, John Fissell, Rod Heine, Earl Palm and J. H. Stout.

In a preliminary, scheduled for about 7 p. m., the little Tigers, plan to extend their win streak at the expense of the Washington reserves. Coach Steve Brudzinski's boys have won two in a row and want to make it three.

While the Tigers and Blue Lions are playing here, the other SCO teams will be busy trying to better their places in the standings. Greenfield will be host to the undefeated Chillicothe team, where Coach Earl Young is reported to be "worrying" again. "Bear" stories from Ross county have Nell Johnston, high-scoring center, on the sidelines with a blister on his foot. Chillicothe meets what probably will be its sternest test of the season Saturday night when Dover plays there.

In the other Friday night SCO game, Hillsboro plays at Wilmington.

YANKEES HEAD SOUTH TO PREP FOR AL SEASON

NEW YORK, Feb. 7—The Yankees march on Dixie today and they'll be welcome even where folks are still fighting the civil war, because deep in the old confederacy there hasn't been a major league baseball team around in four years.

Besides the Yankees—baseball variety—are a far cry from the Damsyankees who brought bayonets instead of ball bats in the '60's. They've got Joe Dimaggio, Andy Chagley Keller, and Phil Rizzuto, Spud Chandler, even old Bill Dickey. That crew and the others who comprise the 1946 Yankees are the February favorites to regain the American League championship.

The Yankees will go direct from here to Miami after which headquarters will be established in St. Petersburg, Fla., and the team will begin an elaborate training tour to the Panama Canal zone.

The Yankees also will go "deep in the heart of Texas" in their tank-town tour of the sunny side of the Mason-Dixon line.

There were 13 Yankees along with Manager Joe McCarthy in the group that left New York today. They will be joined by 19 more players and Coach John Schulte and trainer Ed Frolich at Miami.

COUNTY TEAMS SET FOR LAST FRIDAY PROGRAM

Five Games Scheduled With Ashville-Williamsport Getting Top Nod

Last Friday of competition in the Pickaway county basketball league finds five games planned. The league scheduled originally called for play to end on Friday, February 15, but conflicts with tournaments caused the moving up of the last games. After Friday's battles there will be a few games next Tuesday as the teams wind up pre-tournament play.

Most interest probably will be centered on the game at Williamsport, where Ashville plays the Deer Creek club. Ashville has gone undefeated since dropping an early-season game to New Holland. Williamsport has improved and promises to provide plenty of competition for Ashville.

Salt Creek will be favored at Walnut. The Salt Creek club has lost four games in the league while Walnut has been having trouble winning.

At Pickaway Monroe will be the favorite, although the Pickaway club can prove troublesome for any of the league teams. Monroe has lost only to New Holland and Ashville.

Scioto expects to win at Jackson, although the Jackson club has turned in some surprises.

The other game, at Atlanta, is rated a toss-up. Darby and Perry both have been having troubles with the stronger teams in the league.

New Holland, leading the league, has an open date Friday and winds up season play Tuesday against Salt Creek at Tarrilton.

Drawings for the county tournament, which promises to be one of the most closely-contested in years, is scheduled to be held tonight at a meeting of superintendents and coaches.

LEADERS CLASH IN CAGE LOOP

Isaly's And Merchants To Play First Game On Industrial Bill

The second clash between the Roundtown Merchants and Isaly's will feature the regular Industrial basketball league program tonight in Roll and Bowl.

Isaly's team has lost only to the Merchants in league play to date. The Merchants won by a good margin in their previous meeting but lost their first game of the season last week when Williams AC trounced them.

The feature game is booked for 7 p. m., first on the three-game program. Isaly's will be strengthened for the contest by the presence of Leon Sims, home on furlough from the Navy.

In the second game fans will see the revitalized Williams AC team in action against John Deere. The Williams team, which formerly played under the name of New Holland, has a roster which includes men who have been playing together for several years.

The team made a big hit with fans last week with the skill displayed against the Merchants.

In the final game on the program Williamsport and Eshelman collide.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 7—Navy's basketball team was still the only major undefeated college squad in the nation today, but the Middies barely managed to preserve their perfect record in a defensive battle against Penn State, 34 to 38.

YANKEES HEAD SOUTH TO PREP FOR AL SEASON

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—The Yankees march on Dixie today and they'll be welcome even where folks are still fighting the civil war, because deep in the old confederacy there hasn't been a major league baseball team around in four years.

Besides the Yankees — baseball variety — are a far cry from the Dams Yankees who brought bayonets instead of ball bats in the '60's. They've got Joe Dimaggio, and Chasley Keller, and Phil Rizzuto, Spud Chandler, even old Bill Dickey. That crew and the others who comprise the 1946 Yankees are the February favorites to regain the American League championship.

The Yankees will go direct from here to Miami after which headquarters will be established in St. Petersburg, Fla., and the team will begin an elaborate training tour to the Panama Canal zone.

The Yankees also will go "deep in the heart of Texas" in their tank-town tour of the sunny side of the Mason-Dixon line.

There were 13 Yankees along with Manager Joe McCarthy in the group that left New York today. They will be joined by 19 more players and Coach John Schulte and trainer Ed Frolich at Miami.

The Panama trip will begin on Feb. 9 when the combined party will go by plane to the canal zone for a series of 11 games with U. S. Army and local professional teams.

COUNTY TEAMS SET FOR LAST FRIDAY PROGRAM

Five Games Scheduled With Ashville-Williamsport Getting Top Nod

Last Friday of competition in the Pickaway county basketball league finds five games planned.

The league scheduled originally called for play to end on Friday, February 15, but conflicts with tournaments caused the moving up of the last games. After Friday's battles there will be a few games next Tuesday as the teams wind up pre-tournament play.

Most interest probably will be centered on the game at Williamsport, where Ashville plays the Deercreek club. Ashville has gone undefeated since dropping an early-season game to New Holland. Williamsport has improved and promises to provide plenty of competition for Ashville.

Salt Creek will be favored at Walnut. The Salt Creek club has lost four games in the league while Walnut has been having trouble winning.

At Pickaway Monroe will be the favorite, although the Pickaway club can prove troublesome for any of the league teams. Monroe has lost only to New Holland and Ashville.

Scioto expects to win at Jackson, although the Jackson club has turned in some surprises.

The other game, at Atlanta, is rated a toss-up. Darby and Perry both have been having troubles with the stronger teams in the league.

New Holland, leading the league, has an open date Friday and winds up season play Tuesday against Salt Creek at Tarrinton.

Drawings for the county tournament, which promises to be one of the most closely-contested in years, is scheduled to be held tonight at a meeting of superintendents and coaches.

LEADERS CLASH IN CAGE LOOP

Isaly's And Merchants To Play First Game On Industrial Bill

The second clash between the Roundtown Merchants and Isaly's will feature the regular Industrial basketball league program tonight in Roll and Bowl.

Isaly's team has lost only to the Merchants in league play to date. The Merchants won by a good margin in their previous meeting but lost their first game of the season last week when Williams AC trounced them.

The feature game is booked for 7 p. m., first on the three-game program. Isaly's will be strengthened for the contest by the presence of Leon Sims, home on furlough from the Navy.

In the second game fans will see the revitalized Williams AC team in action against John Deere. The Williams team, which formerly played under the name of New Holland, has a roster which includes men who have been playing together for several years. The team made a big hit with fans last week with the skill displayed against the Merchants.

'GRAY' BREAD SAID HEATHFUL

More Vitamins Will Be Found In 'Emergency' Loaf Experts State

By RUTH GMEINER
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7 — The gray bread you're going to eat for the next five months may look peculiar but it's going to be downright healthful.

Nutritionists say that President Truman's new conservation orders on flour, intended primarily to assure more food for hungry Europe and Asia, would also prove a "boon to the national diet."

Vitamin-conscious Americans are going to get more thiamin, niacin, iron and protein from the "emergency" bread. At present, most of these important nutrients are ground out to get the finer white bread popular with the public, although some bakers put them back in artificially.

Angel food cake and other fine-textured pastries are due to disappear temporarily from civilian tables, too.

Officials estimated that it would be several weeks before the new dark bread appears in retail stores. It will take that long for present stocks of "white" flour to be consumed and millers to shift to the new formula.

Mr. Truman's order called on millers to get at least 12 per cent more flour out of every bushel of wheat, meaning they will have to use some of the non-white ingredients that are ordinarily discarded.

In forecasting appearance of "gray" bread, flour experts said the average consumer may not be able to tell the difference unless he compares loaves "before and after." Bread will not be as dark as the present whole-wheat loaves.

The taste will be different—but you may like it better than today's fine-textured bread. Government officials believed, however, that bread consumption may fall while the public becomes accustomed to its new flour diet.

The order directing millers to get more flour out of wheat marks the first time in more than a quarter century that the government has tampered with the nation's bread formula.

During World War I, civilians were placed on even stricter restrictions. "Wheatless" days were observed each week and wheat flour used in bread was restricted to 25 per cent while the rest was made from rye, barley or other grains. World War II food regulations didn't affect bread.

John T. McCarthy, a representative of the American Bakers association, assured the public that while it may find gray bread "less palatable," the standards for making it will remain as high as ever.

'GRAY' BREAD SAID HEATHFUL

More Vitamins Will Be Found In 'Emergency' Loaf Experts State

By RUTH GMEINER
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Feb. 7 — The gray bread you're going to eat for the next five months may look peculiar but it's going to be downright healthful.

Nutritionists say that President Truman's new conservation orders on flour, intended primarily to assure more food for hungry Europe and Asia, would also prove a "boon to the national diet."

Vitamin-conscious Americans are going to get more thiamin, niacin, iron and protein from the "emergency" bread. At present, most of these important nutrients are ground out to get the finer white bread popular with the public, although some bakers put them back in artificially.

Angel food cake and other fine-textured pastries are due to disappear temporarily from civilian tables, too.

Officials estimated that it would be several weeks before the new dark bread appears in retail stores. It will take that long for present stocks of "white" flour to be consumed and millers to shift to the new formula.

Mr. Truman's order called on millers to get at least 12 per cent more flour out of every bushel of wheat, meaning they will have to use some of the non-white ingredients that are ordinarily discarded.

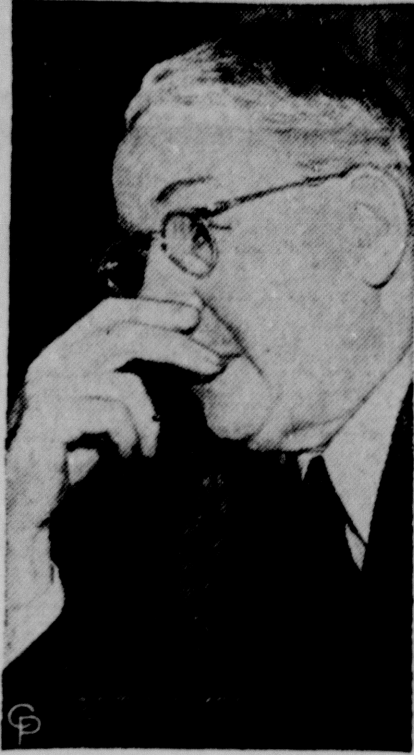

In forecasting appearance of "gray" bread, flour experts said the average consumer may not be able to tell the difference unless he compares loaves "before and after." Bread will not be as dark as the present whole-wheat loaves.

The taste will be different—but you may like it better than today's fine-textured bread. Government officials believed, however, that bread consumption may fall while the public becomes accustomed to its new flour diet.

The order directing millers to get more flour out of wheat marks the first time in more than a quarter century that the government has tampered with the nation's bread formula.

During World War I, civilians were placed on even stricter restrictions. "Wheatless" days were observed each week and wheat flour used in bread was restricted to 25 per cent while the rest was made from rye, barley or other grains. World War II food regulations didn't affect bread.

John T. McCarthy, a representative of the American Bakers association, assured the public that while it may find gray bread "less palatable," the standards for making it will remain as high as ever.

NORTH COUNTRY MIRACLE TOLD

Teacher-Nurse Relates How Indian Mother Saves Child's Life

BY ROBERT RICHARDS
United Press Staff Correspondent

TORONTO, Ont.,— Florence Dodman came down from the wild north country of the Great Slave lake and told the story of an old Indian woman who talked it over with her God and saved the life of her child against the advice of modern medical science.

Pretty Miss Dodman worked until recently as a clerk in a Canadian airlines advance outpost, and voluntarily served among Yellowknife and Dogrib Indians as a teacher and nurse.

"The other day I went to the cabin of Victoire Martell," Miss Dodman said. "I knew that Victoire's youngest child— she had 10—was suffering from tuberculosis of the bone but I didn't realize she was near death. When I got to the cabin the child's fever was extremely high and her spinal column was almost rigid."

"Victoire told me: 'I will save her. I must save her. She is my last child. I will have no others. I am too old now.'"

"I looked at the stricken girl and I told Victoire: 'You must be as Indians always are when disaster comes. Victoire, you must be brave. Your child will die. I tell you this frankly because I cannot help you.'"

"Other children in the log cabin began wailing then and Victoire took the child from the bed and laid her on the floor. Indians always want their children to be born or to die on the floor."

"I was almost ready to leave to make the rounds elsewhere. I had done what I could to make the child comfortable but she obviously was still in greatest pain. Just as I was ready to say goodbye, Victoire said, 'I will save her myself. I will turn to the ways of my ancient Gods.'"

"Another white woman was present and she cried, 'Oh, she means she will burn the child's hair. Don't let her do that—it's barbaric.'"

But Victoire squatted in a corner, numbing to herself. Then she returned and said gravely:

"I have talked it over with my new God and he said if it would help my child that it was all right."

"The other white woman kept arguing," Miss Dodman said, "but I told her, 'see here, it's Victoire's child and it's bound to die. If it makes her feel any better, why, let her do it.'"

"So faded old Victoire lit a match to the child's hair and watched the flames flare up."

"She burned away every hair on the child's head," Miss Dodman continued. "Then she took the match, placed it inside a cup, and pressed the cup tightly against the top of the child's skull. We were amazed when within a few minutes the child ceased being so rigid and became completely relaxed. We later discovered that Victoire's cup, in a method often used by civilized doctors, had relieved the terrific pressure on the child's nerve centers and brought her through the crisis."

$4,000 QUIZ PRIZE

Some lucky contestant is going to be $4,000 richer this Saturday for knowing the right answer on the "Break The Bank" quiz. The largest single amount in the history of radio ever to be paid off for one right answer is waiting for the person who comes through with the correct response.

Last week a sailor, John Westbrook of Chattanooga, Tennessee, missed his chance at the fabulous payoff because he honestly admitted he heard someone in the audience state the correct answer and

Pickaway District Boy Scouts Join In Observance of 36th Anniversary

Pickaway district of Boy Scouts of America are joining in the national observance of Boy Scout week, which starts Thursday and continues through February 14.

"Scouts of the World—Building Together" is the theme of the observance of the incorporation of Boy Scouts of America at Washington, D. C., February 8, 1910.

A total of 187 boys and 58 adults are promoting the Boy Scout program in the Pickaway district. There are 152 Boy Scouts, 35 Cubs and 58 Scouters, adult leaders, participating in the Scout program in the district. Boy Scout troops in the district include those at Kingston, Stoutsville, Ashville and three in Circleville. A Cub pack in Circleville and a neighborhood den for Kingston Cubs round out the troop organizations.

Special observance of the "week" is being made at troop meetings. Special projects are being carried out by some troops.

At the meeting of troop 121 Jack Pettit read a story of how Scouting came to the United States. A 36th birthday knot tying contest followed. Means of judging were discussed by Scoutmaster Bob Dean.

Window displays by each patrol of the troop are planned during the week. Eagle patrol is putting in a miniature camping scene. Forty Scout Knot board is planned by the Flaming Arrow patrol. The Panther patrol is displaying different types of tents. Cobra patrol is showing Scout equipment. These displays are in the windows of the I. W. Kinsey store and Chicken Inn.

President Truman, in a message to Boy Scouts opening the anniversary week, states that the "theme for the year... is timely, refreshing and appropriate."

In his message to the 1,977,463 members of the Boy Scouts of America, of which he is honorary president, Mr. Truman said, "Your record for wartime services accomplished is enviable."

President Truman's message, made public by N. L. Cochran, Pickaway District Chairman of the Central Ohio Council, Boy Scouts of America, follows:

"To the Boy Scouts of America: "In a world that has suffered so grievously from the most awful war in history, your theme for the year, Scouts of the World—Building Together is timely, refreshing and appropriate."

"Evidence of your determination to help your fellow Scouts in other lands less fortunate than ours is worthy indeed of the Boy Scouts of America. Your record for wartime services accomplished is enviable. Analyze it and you will find that planning, enthusiasm, and above all, cooperation helped you win through in your various campaigns."

"Now that hostilities have ceased you Scouts and your brother Scouts overseas can help the world maintain a secure peace by fostering good-will, understanding, and respect through continued cooperation."

"Good Scouts, good Scoutmasters and good Scouting! There is a real contribution to the new world now in the making."

"Keep on Building Together in this, the thirty-seventh year of the Scout Movement in America, and all the years to come!"

(Signed) "Harry S. Truman"

FARM PRACTICES MUST BE GIVEN A A A APPROVAL

Farmers must have farm practices approved before carrying them out to be eligible for AAA assistance under the 1946 agricultural conservation program, John G. Boggs, county chairman, reminded growers today.

In previous years, farmers could earn a payment simply by completing a practice approved generally for the area. But this year, counties are receiving an allocation of funds to carry out the AAA program. In order to keep expenditures within the county budget, practices must receive "prior" approval by the county committee.

"We don't want any disappointed farmers at the end of the year," Mr. Boggs said. "It would be too bad for farmers to go ahead and complete practices, thinking they were going to get some AAA help and then find out that the practices are not eligible."

"Farmers should check first with the AAA county committee, so that practices they want to carry out on their farms can be included in the county's program budget," he said.
